XI'AN PROFILE

Xi'an, which was called Chang'an in ancient times, has a long history, including over 3,100 years of city history and over 1,100 years of capital history during which it was the capital of thirteen dynasties successively. It shares the equal frame of the four greatest ancient capitals of civilization in the world with Athens, Rome and Cairo. The Silk Road starts from here, west to ancient Rome.

With powerful science and technology, complete industry categories and increasingly mature city service system, Xi'an has become the important bases of scientific research, higher education, national defense technology and hi-tech industries in China and the centers of finance, science and technology, education, tourism and business in the middle and west of northern China.

Xi'an is a famous tourist and cultural city in China based on rich tourism resources. Lots of places of interest are favored by tourists, such as the famous Terra-cotta Warriors and Horses of Qin Shihuang Mausoleum, the Xi'an Circumvallation of Ming Dynasty and so on. There are 63 colleges and universities, 121 museums, 13 public libraries, 2 mass art museums, 14 cultural centers and 174 cultural stations in this city.

Xi'an is a livable city. Its climate belongs to the warm temperate semi-humid continental monsoon climate. There are four distinctive seasons in one year here. It's hot and rainy in summer, while cold and dry in winter. The annual average temperature is 13.1 to 13.4°C. With the complete bus and subway network, the transportation here is convenient. And various delicious food is served here. Specifically, the nearly 300 kinds of special snacks make people linger in the Muslim Street, the famous food and culture block in Xi'an.
